When one thinks of AIDS, what do they think of? Perhaps a woman on the streets in a dark, dank alleyway, with some heroin or cocaine. Or perhaps a man who's willing to give his disease to every other person out there. Maybe some even think of an unsuspecting teenager. But people aren't necessarily incorrect for their thoughts. FOR does one OUR think of a baby as a possibility? A newborn without teeth? A little tyke that can't even walk yet? Under completely normal circumstances, one'd think not. Some might be wondering, "how on earth would a baby get an adult disease?" It's the adult's fault, obviously. Imagine being a young woman, risky in her choices during her adulthood. A lot of reckless drugs and sex, right? It turns out that you, the young woman in this instance, have AIDS from being reckless. But for whatever reason, it doesn't hurt you much, so you continue life, normally. One day you find out you're pregnant, and about nine months later you have this little bundle of joy... and misery. And whether you knew it or not, your child is in the same predicament as you. Your child... has AIDS. Like mother like son, huh? Although it may have not been a girl, WOMAN... whatever, it's all hypothetical.

Speaking logically, "infants" and "aids" don't go together well. So, to those who are left with no freedom left, tell them to not spend it recklessly. Provide them with protection, and to at least get their own needles. The statement, "think of the children," like some doctor's wife, because that's what we're doing here. That's what they need to do. The children are all we have left. They're the future, and we need to protect it.
